DEAD SEA JORDAN

— 434 METRES — BELOW SEA LEVEL

The Dead Sea is a salt lake situated in the Jordan Valley at the lowest point on Earth. The salinity of the Dead Sea is about 10 times saltier than the ocean and is considered an extremely hostile environment that bars the existence of any plants or animals in it. Said intense salinity is the contributing factor to the floating phenomena which people from around the world have flocked to witness and try firsthand for many centuries.

Widely regarded as the oldest naturally occurring spa, the salinity allows for the presence of a unique mineral content in the waters and muds of the Dead Sea which have been long regarded as potential treatments for many topical ailments. Additionally, being so low below sea level, airborne allergens and pollen are hardly present and the reduced ultraviolet component of the sunlight along with a higher atmospheric pressure have been noted to improve respiratory function.

The Dead Sea is widely perceived as one of the natural wonders of the world. With celebrity fans as remarkable as King Herod the Great and Cleopatra, this location continues to attract visitors seeking better health, youth restoration and a scientifically ideal geographic location for confirmed physical relaxation.

— THE HOTEL —

At a location concealed for centuries in the cradle of time, where unique nature and millennia of history have conspired to create the world's oldest naturally occurring spa is Kempinski Hotel Ishtar Dead Sea. The resort is adorned with three luxurious enclaves set amidst gardens dotted with lagoons, waterfalls and private pools, providing guests absolute privacy in a serene and simultaneously exclusive setting.

Kempinski Hotel Ishtar Dead Sea is built with local stone and designed in affectionate tribute to the Hanging Gardens of Babylon. There are 345 rooms and suites designed with contemporary décor that weaves pristine lines into a polished Arabesque setting perfectly at ease with indisputably enchanting surroundings.

The Dead Sea is a one of a kind location which is persistently a great attraction for visitors till this very day. The awe-inspiring Kempinski Hotel Ishtar Dead Sea has become the iconic address which lures guest with the promise of a relentless endeavour of providing the finest service at the lowest point on earth to the celestial heights of luxury.
